Elmhurst High School
Fort Wayne, Indiana

I exist in an audience reaction communicating with my cultural traits.
Yet I stand alone surrounded by my individual endeavors

Some go slowly
surely and self confidently, others in haste and mental confusion, yet others alternate like the swing of a pendulum.

Small experiences,
so many they seem infinite,
and emotions so varied,
dominate the force in life.

We emerge as individuals trying to relate to our surrounding environment; trying to prove our existing nature as a human being.
There is a time to come together to see what can be done for man.

Stop!

Notice the surrounding activity:
the kindness, the cruelty,
the intelligence, the stupidity,
the happiness, the sadness,
the victories, the defeats.
All are signs of life.

I observe signs of apathy - each day a new face stimulating ideas and goals

Signs of determination emerges and many acquaintances vanish — provide a motivation to belong.

I try to visualize
untouched horizons,
but conflicts
and inner thoughts of tranquility help establish the drive forward,
toward new perspectives

My growth matures through time and experience — formulating impressions of friends and close relationships

I find myself
engrossed with thoughts—thinking whats to come after I leave my security, for ventures in the future

I pass the hurdle of victory which becomes a part of my life — one small goal becomes an accomplishment through the hope of success

Together we form a nucleus thrusting into a society that's striving for equality.
We are the signs of life.

Temporarily united by common interests—
we engage in stimulating, influencing individualistic ideas

Once in a year . . .

Above: Fort Wayne's municipal airport is one of the largest in the country, transporting 339,586 passengers, 1,766,628 lbs. of mail, 2,299,216 lbs. of express, and 11,076,686 lbs. of cargo in 1969. Right: Serving the county for more than half a century, the Allen County courthouse will remain in service upon completion of the city-county building, losing only a few of its occupants.

Among diversified opinions, still unity prevails

Starting small, student and community interest focused on pollution. Reports on ecology, the study of organisms and their environment, frequently dominated conversation at meetings ranging from PTA to the city council. Talk shows around the nation also delved into the earth's future if pollution and misuse of resources continue. Prognosticators predict within twenty years the earth's atmosphere will be unable to support life.

Radio station WLYV sponsored a 50¢ Christmas dance in which nine-hundred teens, from a 45 mile radius, filled the Lantern to capacity to give and enjoy music by the "Story". Estimates ran that another nine-hundred remained outside until cold weather and/or the police drove them away. Proceeds went to The Fort Wayne Allen County and Saint Vincent's Villa Children's Homes.

Homestead Junior and Senior High absorbed about 170 Elmhurst sophomores living in Aboite Township. The building will contain lecture halls more advanced than any in the city. Talking in a normal tone and being heard throughout the hall is one main feature. It is still to be seen if Trojans, who sit on bleachers in the gym during all assemblies, will feel a twinge of jealousy.

Above: The war moratorium of November 15, 1969, expresses a desire to pull out of the war, yet all hopes lead to peace no matter how it be attained — a unifying thought. Upper left: Four month old GE strike nears end. Left: Local government has a new center with the construction of the city-county building.

2,002 festival attenders show approval applause aftermath of compliments

One of the day's top jazz trumpeters, Clark Terry provided the conclusion for the first area jazz festival on April 11. Mr. Terry, an international recording artist, did solos for the appreciative audience, teamed up with Verne Mitchell, trumpet player of the band, on a few duet numbers and one occasion played with Verne in his top row spot. Solos performed included "Mumbles", "Rhapsody for Trumpet" and "I Remember Clifford."

The forepart of the evening consisted of several selections by the three winning bands; Penn of Mishawaka, Hobart and Crown Point. They were chosen from competition of 15 Northern Indiana School jazz groups that performed from 9:30 A.M. to 4 P.M.

Mr. Terry, in the afternoon, conducted a clinic to give pointers and a little inspiration to amateur musicians attending the Elmhurst hosted event.

Faces register varied emotions while anticipating a happy evening

Homecoming queen, Mrs. Mary Beth Ewald Groves, crowns the new queen, senior Sandy Day.

Erratic rain did nothing to alter the spirit of Trojan power at the fourth annual Homecoming. Victory over perennial foe South Side contributed to a major portion of the night's success. A switch from the accelerated pace of the game, the crowning of Sandy Day at half time was highlighted by the original floats and glowing smiles of Sandy, Debbie, Karen and Beth.

The individual floats, painted, constructed and designed by senior volunteers, had a unifying theme of unconventional looking pink mushrooms. Donations taken during homeroom financed the project directed by Mr. Donald Goss.

Culminating the victorious evening, a school dance featured the "Badge", a local folk-rock group. Pent-up excitement assimilated with the decorations, few and simple of Trojan heads and streamers, complemented the already festive mood.

Upper right: Alumni returning for the festivities suffer with wet garments, but not from dampened spirits. Bottom right: Anticipating a happy evening after learning that she will vie for the title of Homecoming queen, Debbie Bonsib, later the senior attendant, rides one of the two senior floats during the assembly.

Festive moods remain undaunted by erratic rain throughout game

"Ladies In Retirement" captivates crowd

"Ladies in Retirement" was based on an actual crime recorded by French police in 1886. In a Paris suburb two middle-aged women lived together. One of them had two insane sisters to whom she was fanatically devoted. In order to provide more comforts for them she murdered her friend, burned the body in a fireplace and buried the remains in a dahlia bed. Her crime was discovered by her nephew, who tried to blackmail her. From the story Edward Percy and Reginald Denham created the play set in England.

Lucy Gilham	Kerri Morris
Leonora Fiske	Terri Ross
Ellen Creed	Thelo White
Albert Feather	Pete Fenyes
Louisa Creed	Carol Howell
Emily Creed	Linda Storey
Sister Theresa	Cyndi Dressel

Not as students, beautiful people reflect mirrored entrance to atmospheric setting

Above: Nervous tension radiates from behind junior Mardy Shaber's hand, while Rick Seitz looks on toward the evening's culminating hours. Right: Arriving amidst fire engines lent a strange atmosphere to the gayla events for Terry Springer, Donna Smith, Dan Fulmer and Monica Lillich, who were unaware of the bomb scare.

Evacuating couples from the school or greeting them at the door, firemen investigated a bomb scare, thus providing extra openers for a few minutes before this year's prom, "Phase Field."

It is not material things that make the prom but the blending of ideas, work, enthusiasm and individual perspectives, before and during the event which decide its success. Seeing friends acting the perfect lady or gentleman made the evening dream-like to many. Excelling in decorations, 70 of Mr. Goss' art students painted and constructed Brent Kline's designs for the second consecutive year. Pink, plum, lavender and purplish colors intertwined, swirled and striped to compliment the overall atmosphere.

Dick Brown and his Orchestra projected instrumental sounds — waltzes, fox trots and two lively polkas. After a few daring couples attempted the polka, others joined and within moments one could see flower petals sailing amidst the almost airborne dancers.

Mechanical plaything captivates minds and monopolizes sports

Skimming, motorized vehicles zipped across the flat acres of suburban Fort Wayne becoming airborne when they crossed an occasional hill. Sledding took a change of face this year as the trend moved away from manual effort to motorized travel objects with the arrival of the relatively new machines, snowmobiles.

Elmhurst's populous, living mostly in the outer city, provided students with an easy access to winter sports. Skating, tobogganing, and the other usual sports were executed in much the same manner as in years past.

Interest in the not so easily accessible sport, skiing, continued to grow as transportation to the slopes seemed more readily available.

A beginning, yet an end; life admits 'newly-foaled', forcing us to let go

Assisting in the presentation of diplomas to young adults, Principal Charles Eickhoff, Mr. Robert Zimmerman, Mrs. Mary Fast and Mr. Douglass Spenser symbolically gave 461 "grads" the key to a future in which only they could determine its life-long value.

Alfred Reed's Intrada and Dramatico set the mood of importance and ceremony followed by Dr. Robert L. Mertz, representing the Fort Wayne Community School System, introduced the honored guest speaker Dr. A. Blair Helman. Dr. Helman, President of Manchester College addressed the graduates at the Coliseum on June 4, 1970.

Even school song hummers sang the familiar words maybe for the last time in a meditative mood as they contemplated the recessional that would lead them from a patterned school life to the world of choice awaiting them.

Analyzing poetic expressions, viewing theater

Debates on controversial issues conducted in Mrs. Anderson's classes divided students into small discussion groups. Topics presented included interracial dating and marriage, abortion and the alleged My Lai massacre. Senior classes veered away from traditional grammar and literature to devote more time to writing, whether it be in essay, poem or analysis form. Writing epigrams, short poems that make a point or have a funny twist at the end, provided entertainment and creative opportunity in Mr. Kurtz's classes.

A semester-end project, required for Bible Literature, enabled Trojans to creatively express themselves. Unusual projects included a book containing original photographs depicting one view of the earth's creation and accompanying quotes from the Bible.

INVOLVED in total concentration, senior Robin Noack gathers related thoughts for a composition.

WORKING CLOSELY with Mr. Kenneth Eytcheson, Fred Miles goes over a few improvements for his English theme.

work involves English students

USING PROPS for his book report, sophomore Bob Taylor utilizes symbolic pictures to express his ideas.

SENIOR PANEL Sue Barker, Roy Gotrick, and Carol Kirby supply answers and induce class criticism.

ADJUSTMENT of the speed indicator enables Walter Frost to increase individual reading and comprehension at his own learning pace.

Speech teaches control, confidence, poise

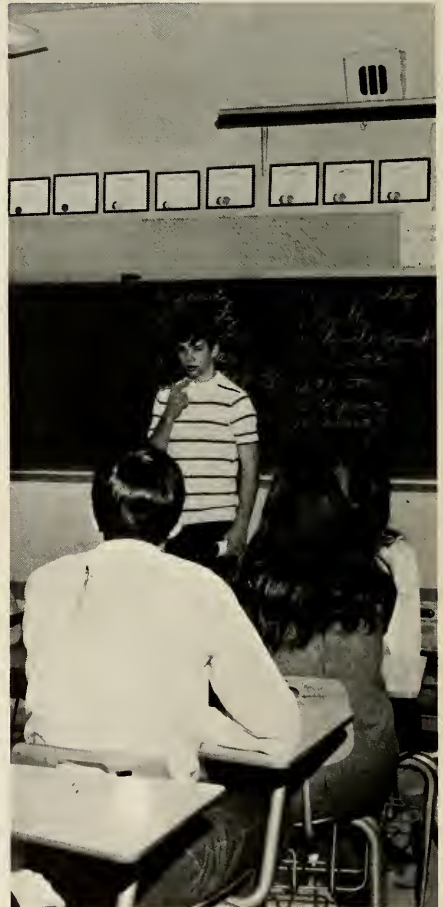

GIVING an original oratory, senior Peggy Bartel uses her knowledge on a subject to present a pleasing speech.

COMBINING the correct posture and poise, junior Stacy Boroff expresses his feelings through an original speech.

Students enrolled in public speaking seem to enjoy demonstration speeches more than any other type of speaking, imparted Mr. Robert Storey, speech instructor. Using the body adds comfort to nervous speakers by relieving their mind and tensed body nerves, he continued.

Students with special interest in speech become enrolled in advanced speech classes this year. Memorizing declarations, writing original speeches, and practicing debate sessions dominated the time of speech students.

Experience in public speaking can lead to increased poise and confidence, more logical thinking, improved use of voice, improved courage and increased knowledge of human psychology, added Mr. Storey.

APPLYING NEW TECHNIQUES, student teacher Mr. Dave Baker helps Dan Shryock work on a different news angle.

WORKING TOGETHER, Lorie Burtch, Ellyn Boedeker, and Jenny North find headlines come easier with a little help.

Student teachers provide insights into media

Journalism helps students to gain a basic understanding and appreciation of others and their views; one learns in order to draw conclusions he must have facts; one learns to think for himself, to discipline his listening and become familiar with the mass media, stated instructor, Mr. John M. Butler.

Students enrolled in this course gain an advantage over others because they find it necessary to learn what composes their school and community. The department of publications looks for people interested in finding out what makes the in world revolve, added Mr. Butler.

Students heard guest and faculty speakers, viewed films, practically applied journalistic skills and practiced designing yearbooks.

COMBINING A GOOD EAR and a quick hand, Van Neuhouser takes information for a feature story from Elaine Gres.

Equipment, books facilitate foreign comprehension

Loto! This word meaning bingo, heard in Mrs. Karrasch's classes, came from a French version of the game. This activity used cards similar to bingo cards.

Oral dialogue exams gave students experience in dual French conversation. One impromptu skit of the many conducted, consisted of two people entering a restaurant and ordering dishes from an imaginary menu.

This year a guest speaker, Mrs. Roberts, from Hordeaus, France, explained customs, beliefs and the attitudes of the French people on current day problems and issues.

Pictures from the text book and flash cards aided class discussion and review for Latin tests. The third year class read and partially translated historical works in Latin by Cicero, Ovid, Livy, and Piny.

CHOOSING A NEW TOPIC, German II classes devote Fridays to 'German Day' when they speak only German.

MEMORIZING French numbers requires time consuming concentration but is easily rendered for Pam Lehman by a fast game of French bingo.

WITH THE HELP of an octopus, Mr. Lohr explains the functions of mollusks.

MIXING AND MESSING with chemicals, juniors Jeff Fishman and Joel DeSelm find that cooperation and concentration are a must.

EYEING THE SITUATION, junior Julie Engleman finds a new hidden world of bacteria under the powerful lense of a microscope.

Chicago trip climaxes search for new scientific info

Knowledge and understanding of natural sciences was gained and intensified through experiments, research papers, open discussions and lectures.

Students enrolled in chemistry, one of Elmhurst's most popular science courses, taught the basic fundamentals necessary to understand the different structures of all forms of matter. On the other hand, biology provided interesting information on the life process of all organisms.

Botany classes concentrated on the composition, function, and growth processes of different plants. In the same sense, earth science offered students a close-up view of the earth and its relation to the universe.

FIGURING vector forces, Tom Yoder combines a sharp eye and steady hand to lessen his percent of error.

HANDS . . . symbolize willingness to learn and the capacity to achieve knowledge in all phases of science.

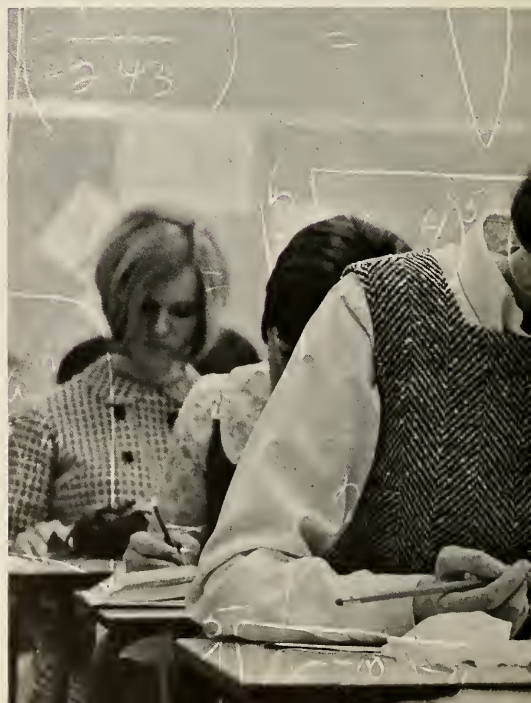

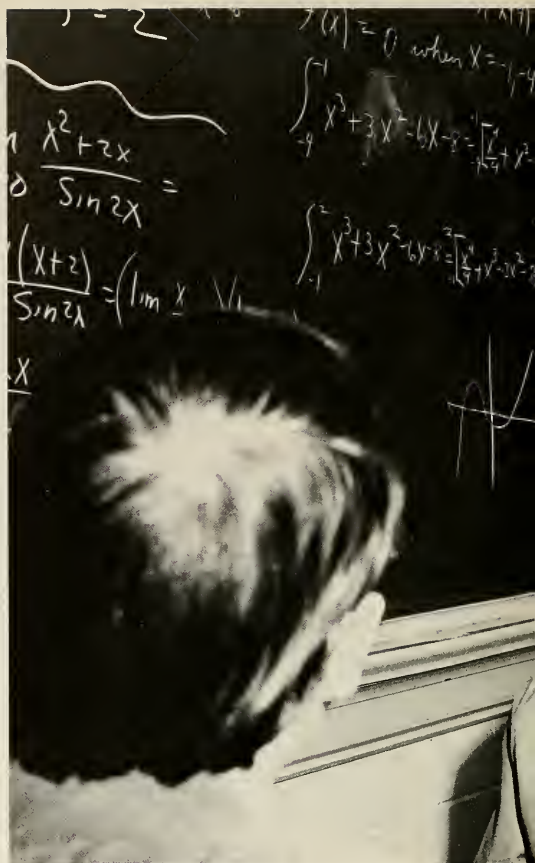

Math department drops advanced placement program

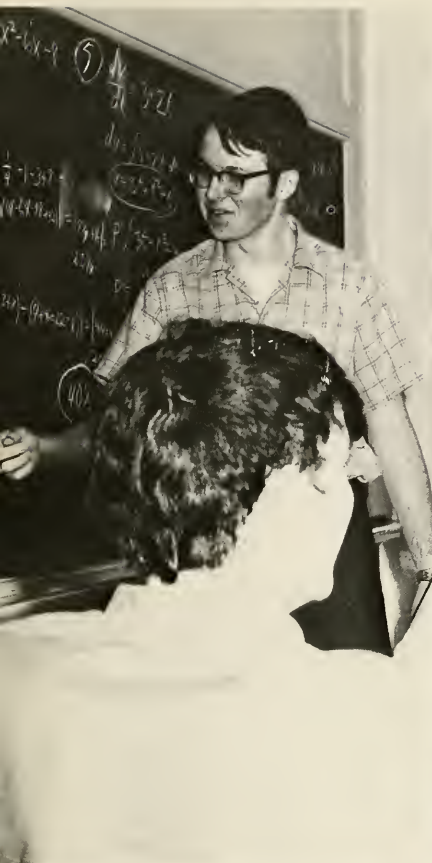

In Algebra I, students were introduced to the fundamentals needed to study higher mathematics, physics and chemistry. Geometry on the other hand, extended the principles students learned in first year algebra, and a basic introduction and preparatory course for Algebra II.

For college-bound students, trigonometry ideally prepared them to tackle problems involving triangular relations, angular velocity and distance determination. This was the last year for advanced placement of students who took algebra in eighth grade. But calculus was still offered because of the desire of seniors wanting to take double math courses. This will remain so until the aforementioned desire ends.

TRIGONOMETRY takes up many spare moments for Skip McKinley as he hurries to complete an assignment.

DOWNTOWN Fort Wayne plans reconstruction of modern parks and public buildings as displayed by a future model built by Marsha Coverdale, Becky Borden, Cheryl Sanders, and Barb Bachert.

STIMULATING U.S. History discussions led by Mr. Nick Werling give students a boost in open participation.

DEBATING several social aspects concerning drugs, Mr. James Farless induces controversy among students.

MR. RICHARD MATTIX, going over an economics test helps Kathy Barlow with a few unanswered questions.

PREPARING AN ASSIGNMENT for U.S. history, Mike Grossman uses spare time to complete final details.

City Council, mock U.N. broadens social science ideas

Cooperative teaching American History classes presented students with a balanced view on American History, experience in understanding two different types of teaching, and less personalized teaching. These innovations formed two classes of about sixty students.

Each student representing a country conducted a mock United Nations session in World Affairs classes. Later the high school ambassadors to the United Nations received a handbook to learn parliamentary procedures. Students vetoed or passed proposed solutions to world problems, thus bringing classes closer to world problems.

Government classes directed mock jury trials which informed students of courtroom procedures. As a requirement, students visited city council meetings.

PE instructors advise students on fitness, help

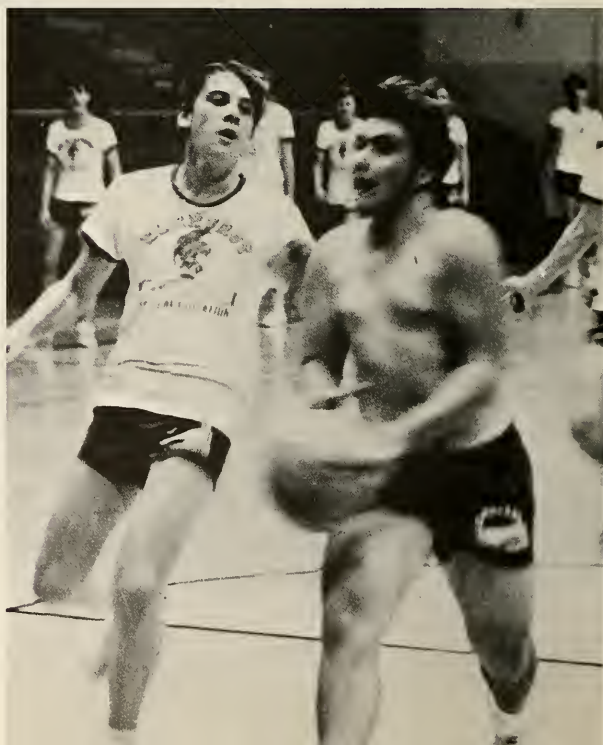

Golf and speed-a-way were two of the new sports added to girls' physical education classes. Putting their experience to use, Becky and Candy Miller aided in teaching the correct fundamentals of golf. Speed-a-way, a combination of speedball, football, and soccer helps participants to develop physical and mental coordination. Each team of eleven players compete to try to pass the ball over their respective goal. The fast-moving game, usually played outdoors, requires only a soccer ball and alert players, supplemented Mrs. Doswell, physical education teacher.

Major sports involved the boys' physical education included track, basketball, wrestling, football, soccer, and volleyball. Each day began warm-up exercises. Mr. Campbell stressed the goal of physical education, to build strong muscles and to develop better attitudes toward the human body and sportsmanship.

COLD OR HOT makes no difference to the boys in PE as they go through their daily routine of showers.

Business courses expand to meet the community demands

Using adding machines, calculators and practice sets plus drawing up income statements and balancing books occupied book-keeping classtime. Mrs. Marcella Goble, instructor, acknowledged the course's purpose, helping students to learn and prepare for a future in business since it is essential in many vocations.

Business law classes discussed numerous common and statute laws and this year stressed and separated business and criminal law. Local and superior courts, examined in class, provided an understanding of the United States judicial system, added Mr. Donald Fryback.

Debate often centered on discharge, form of and breaches of contract, debtor and creditor relations and different insurance policies.

GOOD POSTURE and correct hand position are two basic requirements of a typist as shown by Charlene Rhoads.

A NECESSITY FOR COLLEGE WORK. Typing I provides a background in the fundamentals and continuous practice for Charlie Hoopes.

LEARNING THE SYMBOLS and 184 brief forms, senior Pam Hart increases her accuracy by taking a long dictation.

TYPING VARIOUS OFFICE MANUSCRIPTS, Vivian Scott learns one of many phases of the business world through clerical practice.

RESETTING A MARGIN requires little time and effort in preparing Diane Sencenich's typewriter for further use.

DE, ICT provide comprehensive, on job training

AS A MEMBER of the vocational education program, senior Ruth Ann Kraft performs her daily job of pressing clothes for a local dry cleaner.

CLERKING at a department store, Kathy McClure acquires valuable training for future years.

"Distributive Education, for selling and advertising oriented Trojans, bridges the gap between theory and actual practice in the business world," defined advisor William Bahney. A field trip to ITT Technical School in Industrial Park and the Magnavox factory, along with major research projects to enter in state and national competition, added variety to the course. Awards in the competition were awarded on the basis of an Area of Distribution Manual which told the life of a specific product sold by the student. Qualifying seniors Cheryl Miller, Marlene Houston, Karen Hanke and Loraine Barker each shared the hopes of winning.

In Industrial Cooperative Training, each participant learned a specific trade or skill. Each student received a book on his particular trade and individual supervision. Discussions included topics on getting along with people, taxes and the pros and cons of labor unions.

SORTING AND fixing tapes are among the many services performed by Stan Perry as a member of the ICT program.

WORKING IN surroundings she prefers, senior Karen Hanke arranges flower bouquets for a wedding.

ALIGNING THE headlights of a car is one of the many jobs performed by ICT member senior Steve Shadle.

Art 'gets it together' by originating 216 foot painting

Forms of clay, pottery, windchimes, wood sculptures, paintings and 3-dimensional objects of art formulated a serene atmosphere in the once barren room at the exclusively Elhurst exhibit at the Indiana-Purdue Regional Campus. 1970 requirements included Christmas cards, adapting pictures to drawings and combining two color pictures into a third different picture. Encouraged was the study of music and poetry because they are forms of art, commented Mr. Donald Goss.

Theater arts, the revised stagecraft course, covered acting, writing, filming and stagecraft. Participants made films lasting from two to three minutes. Long script discussions in class determined if the script made sense, had good meaning and, above all, well organized structure. In another project the film could begin anywhere but had to end at a type of wall, whether it be of hands, brick or police. Plans for a film festival to pay for and let others view the somewhat personal films were being considered by the students involved and Mr. Goss.

WORKING ON THE SET for 'Ladies in Retirement', Jeff Sullivan learns about art construction in the theater.

BRUSH MOVEMENT supplies flowing techniques for junior Dan Johnson as he combines colors to complement his ideas.

SPONGE AND WATER are basic tools for Dennis Knight as he constructs a smooth lid to a clay pot.

ADVANCED ART STUDENT John Hornberger chips away clay shavings to form and contour the chin of his sculpture.

SHOWING MARIJUANA

of these harmful drugs.

Alcohol, narcotics investigates harmful addictive drugs

Outside speakers contributed to the everyday class discussions in Alcohol and Narcotics. They told of experiences with drugs, some on how they got started and the progress of their withdrawal and ultimate reform. The Fort Wayne Vice Squad displayed marijuana, speed, and hash to inform students of their appearance and smell.

Cigarettes and cigars experimented with during class established just how much tar and nicotine collect in a smoker's lungs. This proved a special day for some students, they stopped smoking. A class sponsored survey taken throughout the school asked at what age level people started smoking, what brand they smoked, and their reason for the practice. The survey concluded, above all, that most questioned smoked because it was the "thing to do."

Required by state law that everyone have a health credit, the course informs students of the human body and its vulnerabilities and nutrition.

USING VISUAL PROPS, Sgt. Meeks discusses facts about drugs to Linda Leslie, Darla Smith, and Bob Smiley.

Library solves book demands with $4,300 purchase

Under the supervision of Mrs. Mildred Hibben, assisted by Mrs. Mary Mann and Mr. Harold Sullivan, the library provided a quiet retreat for class-weary students.

Recent magazines and newspapers kept students informed on current happenings, from hot rods to the latest fashions. These supplemented the knowledge available in books for necessary research for term papers and book reports. Past magazines and newspapers were kept on file for reference purposes.

Among a total of 300 new books added this year was a 10 volume set of encyclopedias on Negro History. These books provided detailed information on the progress of the Black man from centuries past up to the present.

PREPARING for her daily assignment, Carol Hohenstein finds that the atmosphere of the library provides a relaxed surrounding for her work.

RECORDING due dates, renewing books and collecting overdue fines demands ample time of the library assistants.

NUMERABLE VOLUMES supply Karen Bratmiller with a large selection for reference and reading pleasure.

PRACTICING for future concerts, Joetta Hood, Wendy Hughes, and Debbie Allen prove that undisturbed attention is vital to any musician.

GIVING serious thought to his music, senior Scott Stolte finds that a quiet atmosphere provides a good place for concentration.

SETTING UP CHAIRS, Pat Wetzel finds the band is an enjoyable place to make new friends while learning music techniques.

Music lays basis in principles of harmony, musical composition

An interest in music was all that was required to boost a growing enrollment in music appreciation. Offered for the fourth year, the course attracted those planning to major in music in college. It dealt with the fundamentals of harmony and enabled participants to enjoy and ponder musically creative work.

Students concluded that the course helped to attain a more diverse knowledge of musical instruments. Identifying instruments by appearance and sound demanded a summons of more than one sense agreed those questioned.

Listening to records, students attempted to analyze such composers as Beethoven, Hayden, and Mozart comparing their compositions and style. Also discussed were the qualities that made a composer unique and great.

WITH UNDIVIDED attention fixed on Mr. Schmutz, the choir gets basic instruction in tempo and pronunciation.

EVEN IN HEAVY winds strict concentration is a must for marching band members as they practice outside daily.

Industrial Art work promotes means of 'learning by doing.'

Perfecting the ability to transmit objects seen into small scale drawings, a skill mastered by only a few, has been the goal of those enrolled in drafting.

In metal classes boys gained skills in working with tools, following instructions and making finished products for home use. Paper weights, screw drivers and die stocks exemplified first year efforts while more difficult projects occupied second year classes.

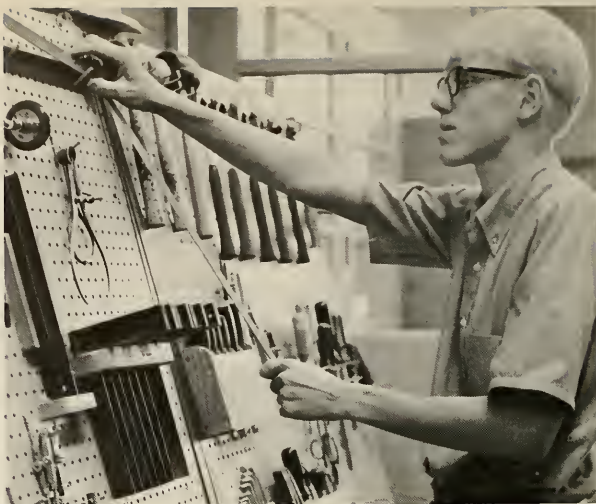

Major woodshop projects included Grandfather clocks, tobaggons, water skis, end tables and book shelves.

A white printer added efficiency to drafting and metal classes received a sander, grinder and a light gauge. New equipment for woodclasses included an overhead router and an electric glue machine.

FOLLOWING the instructions given in the book, junior Gregg Brower finishes his drawing with precision.

PROTECTIVE apparel prevents heat and sparks from annoying Brad Cox as he completes his metalwork.

SEARCHING for the right tool to complete his Wood III project, Greg Huttell decides that a framing square suits his needs best.

CONCENTRATION and a steady hand provide the essentials for Ron Eisberg as he works with compass and protractor.

DRAFTING I poses its share of problems for sophomore Tim Brown while he works on a perfect scale drawing.

THREADING the needle of her machine, Judy Huddleston finds this task necessary but time consuming.

MAKING sure of a correct fit, Diana Geschwell and Jane Gammelgaard help each other with projects.

Home Ec unifies knowledge in solving home-life problems.

The Home Economics department helped to prepare interested girls in different phases of everyday life plus self understanding and discipline agreed staff instructors.

Clothing courses included the study of fibers and fabrics, a review of sewing techniques, tailoring and advanced clothing construction. Consumer buying, food budgets, understanding the basic four food groups, nutrition, meal planning, table setting and service and etiquette comprised sectors of foods study.

Home Management and family living attracted girls wishing to learn to organize, equip, finance and manage a home. These courses attempted to enlighten girls on family life, marriage responsibilities and child rearing.

LEARNING THE art of good seamstress, Kathy Baughman tackles the basic problem of putting in a good zipper.

FOOD DEMONSTRATIONS given by Barb Lee help students grasp the fundamentals of expert cooking and baking.

SAMPLING THEIR concoction, sophomore Barb Goodwin and Peg Jones find that Food I is a fun yet worthwhile course.

CITY SCORING CHAMP, Steve Stiffler, scores his only touchdown against Central. The Tigers won 19-12.

SENIOR TIM DISLER turns the corner against Central Catholic. He later scored to aid the teams 35-25 win.

THROUGH THE MISTAKE of the photographer, this picture tells of the quickness of backs Steve Stiffler and Rick Chamberlain.

INTERNAL BLOCKING by Stan Wolfe, Dave Wathen, and Mike Peters enables Steve Stiffler to gain a first down.

Stiffler leads explosive shot-gun offense

With the perfection of the short punt formation, the varsity gridders won more games than they lost for the first time in the school's history. Winning a record six city series games, the potent offense scored more points than any previous squad.

The season was highlighted by the most Trojans ever, all seniors, receiving All-City recognition. Steve Stiffler, Stan Wolfe, and Mike Peters were named to the first team and Brett Able to the second team offense. Wolfe was one of only two players to be named to both first units. Accorded honors on the second team defense were Dan Berning and Reed "Tex" Olmstead. Post season honors were also awarded to Stiffler and Wolfe when they received Honorable Mention in the All-State polling.

The city scoring champ, Stiffler broke several school records — points in a season (114), career points (150), and points in a single game (26). Senior Roger Bellis scored a record 17 points after touchdown and kicked the school's first fieldgoal.

COACH DARREL HEASTON discusses second half strategy with sophomores Paul Mathias and Warren Hoffman. The reserves rallied to defeat South Side, 34-6.

Reserves' late season victories show promise

After tuning a sputtering offense, the reserve football squad mirrored the varsity team with a powerful offense. Coupled with a strong defense, which gave up an average of only seven points a game for their final seven games, the reserves won six games and were defeated three times.

The reserves started with two losses, Central Catholic, 48-8; and North Side, 10-0; before edging Bishop Luers, 12-8. After losing to Bishop Dwenger, 14-12; the team rattled off four consecutive victories by defeating Snider, 16-12; Heritage, 27-0; Concordia, 28-0; and South Side, 34-6.

The reserves were paced in scoring by quarterback Jeff Brown who tallied 62 points. Leroy Dunbar scored 38 points and Ed Lewis, 19. Touchdowns were also registered by Mike Ekrich, George Greenler, and Kim Monnier.

BREAKING OFF tackle for a first down, sophomore Leroy Dunbar led the reserves to a 27-0 win over Heritage.

BACK UP quarterback, sophomore George Greenler, punts to Concordia's safety. The reserves defeated the Cadets, 28-0.

SOPHOMORE halfback Leroy Dunbar sprints around end for a touchdown against Snider. Dunbar scored 38 points during the season.

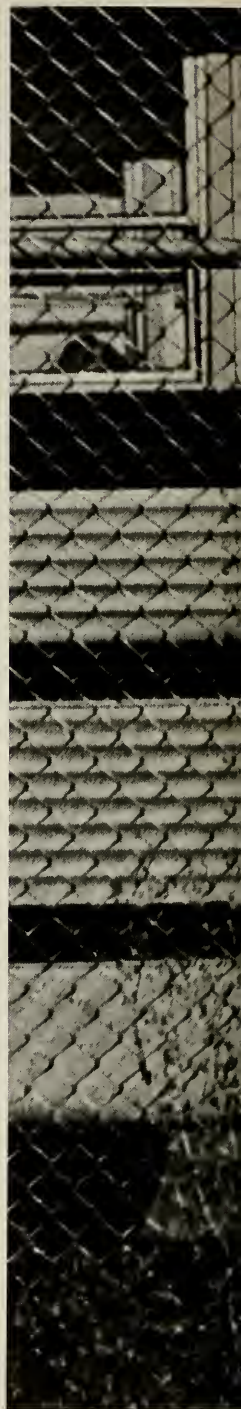

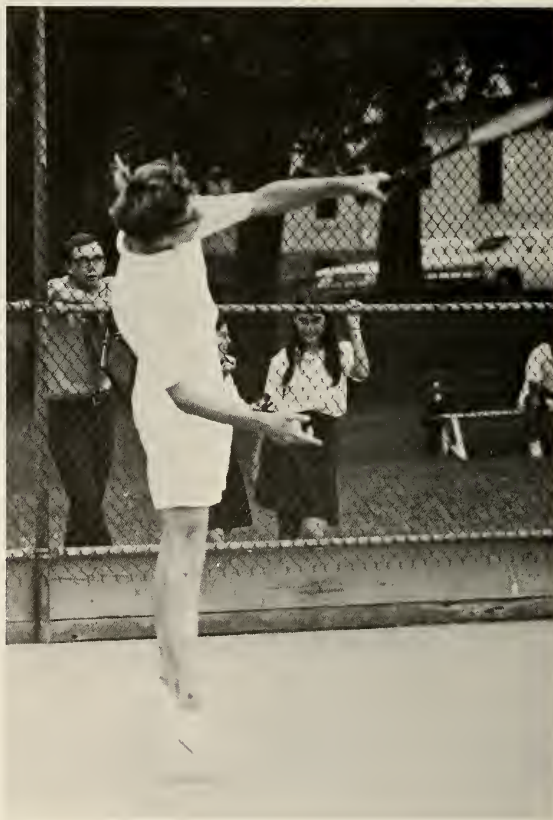

Varsity

SENIOR STEVE CAVELL returns a North Side opponent's serve. Cavell played number one doubles for two years.

NUMBER ONE NETMAN, Senior Dennis Dietzel, serves to his C.C. opponent.

Netmen place fourth in Sectional competition

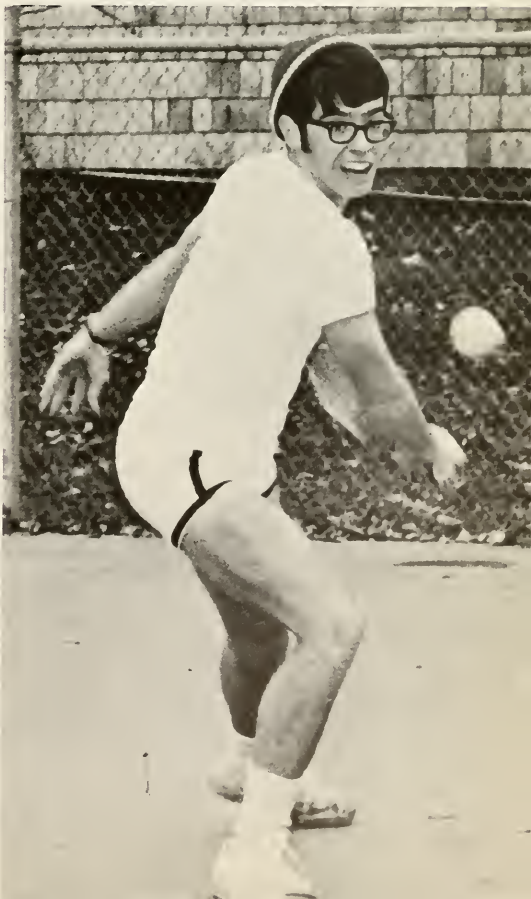

The tennis team was consistently inconsistent as each team member took his turn winning and losing. No one team member led the team continuously in the victory column, nor did one member head the defeated list.

Even though the squad turned in a mediocre 5-6 record, the squad's true strength was contained due to the area's strong teams. Coach Kent Kurtz felt that "The season wasn't a tragedy and it wasn't a smash hit. We'll be back next year."

The team's balance resulted in the constant flow of different leaders. Heading the list were seniors Dennis Dietzel, Steve Cavell, and John Volz. Underclassmen holding the other top spots on the squad were Allen Wittenberg, Buzz Yager, and Walley Shoaf.

WARMING UP before his match, Senior John Hoffman volleys with a teammate. Hoffman played varsity for three years.

SOPHOMORE Wally Shoaf's wool hat depicts the weather. Coldness prevailed during the fall and hindered play.

Harriers place 4th in state finals

JUNIOR STEVE McCABE makes his bid to better his position. McCabe finished third as the team defeated arch rivals South Side, 27-34.

TOP HARRIERS. Tom Cash, Steve McCabe, Paul Ausderan, Todd Sterling, and Terry Youngmans finish bunched together. Balance was the key to the harriers success.

Avening last year's losses to South Side, Snider, North Side, and New Haven, the varsity harriers were undefeated in 14 dual meets. For the fourth time coach Don Kemp has guided the Trojans to City and Sectional titles. Adding the regional crown to their string, the team entered the state finals hoping to improve their second place finish in the Shortridge Invitational which draws the top teams from Indiana and Kentucky. They finished fourth and led all Fort Wayne schools in the meet. Coach Kemp said, "The boys did a super job."

The reserves had an equally successful season. The squad won 13 and were defeated by North Side, 22-35; and Snider, 15-48. After victories over Huntington, DeKalb, and East Noble by forfeit, the reserves skunked five opponents — Tipton, 15-50; Concordia, 15-49; Central, 15-50; Bishop Dwenger, 15-50; and Central Catholic, 15-50. The reserves other victories were the defeats of New Haven, 23-32; Bishop Luers, 23-34; and South Side, 27-31.

VARSITY HARRIER, senior George Kariger, and reserve runner, sophomore Gary Grotrian, discuss the results of their meet with Central. Both the varsity and reserves blitzed their foes by identical scores of 15-50.

IN THEIR QUADRANGULAR meet with South Side, Bishop Dwenger, and Central Catholic, sophomore Paul Ausderan and seniors Todd Sterling and George Kariger attempt to pass a South Side runner. The varsity won all three meets.

Roundballers have 500 season; Able makes All

SAVING the game, Senior Steve Stiffler cuffs a last second shot by a Belmont Brave. Blocking this shot insured the Trojans of a 50-49 triumph.

DRAWING A charging violation, Senior Guard Ron Caldwell trips over a Woodlan opponent during sectional play. Elmhurst bowed to Woodlan with an 88-75 defeat.

With the completion of a 10-11 season, Coach Eytcheson saw the lesser results of his four years as head coach at Elmhurst. A tougher schedule and a lack of height both added to the final outcome. Coming through to win the Irish Invitational Tournament for the second straight year the team appeared to be playing to capacity.

A definite ball handling improvement found the team averaging only 13 errors per game

City for second time

compared to a previous average of 19 errors per game in the 68-69 season.

Making both all sectional forward and second year all city, senior Brett Able brought recognition to both himself and to the school. Receiving honorable mention to all city selection, seniors center Dan Berning and Guard Steve Stiffler also proved themselves to be valuable additions to the squad.

SENIOR BRETT ABLE, stands by waiting to assist junior guard Steve McCabe in gaining control of a rebound in the Woodlan sectional contest.

Netmen defeat Archers for second

COACH KEN Eytcheson, ending his fourth year as head, does a repeated performance at the Irish Tdurney. He is the first coach to ever lead the red and gray to two consecutive Holiday Tourney titles. This was accomplished by defeating Central Catholic in the 1968 play-off, 65-62, and South Side this year 48-44. Holding the ladder for Coach Eytcheson are seniors Rick Chamberlain and Ron Caldwell.

ATTEMPTING

consecutive Irish Tourney title

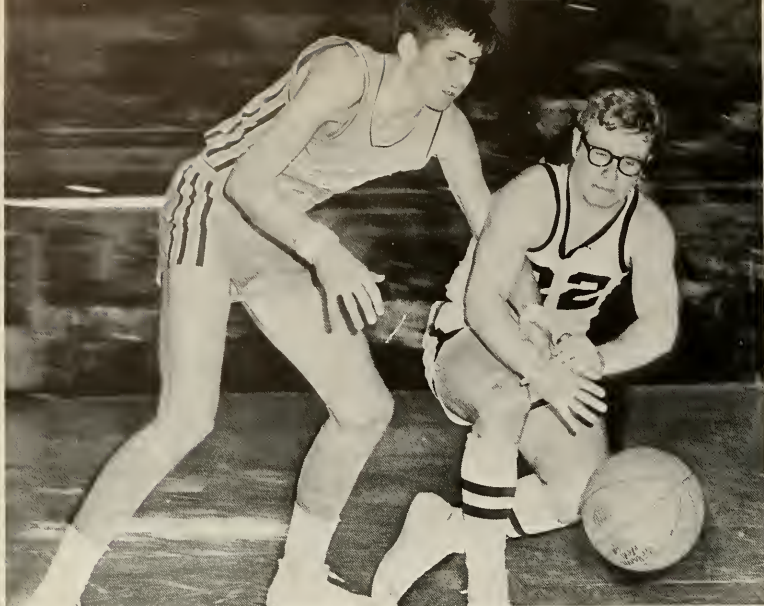

TO CASH in on a fast break against North Side, Steve Stiffler passes to Dan Berning.

HESITATING momentarily, senior guard Rick Chamberlain gathers composure before shooting a foul shot against the Huntington Vikings. The Vikings overpowered the roundballers 83-74.

HELPING OUT on the boards, senior Steve Cavell pulls down a rebound against the Bishop Luers Knights, while forward Steve McCabe, No. 31, comes over to aid Steve. The hoopsters fell short in the first city series contest 58-53.

UNDER PRESSURE, senior Steve Tobias strikes an offensive stance as his teammates struggle to offer assistance.

Reserves post 9-9 slate with six game winning streak

Campbell's reserve basketball team ended a fair season with a 9-9 record, highlighted by a six game winning streak. Finishing even as did the varsity, the only defeats were usually by a trivial small margin.

Sophomores Mel Cannon and Norm Fogwell led the Trojan "spearhead" attack under the direction of coaches John Campbell and John Bunnell who shared practice responsibilities.

GUARDING a Concordia Cadet, reserve guard, Ron Busch waits as he anticipates the Cadets next move. The reserves dropped the final game of the season by a 43-39 decision.

PROTECTING his rebound against an aggressive Snider group is sophomore John Williams. John is the only sophomore to score any points in any varsity game.

Wrestlers break three previous school records

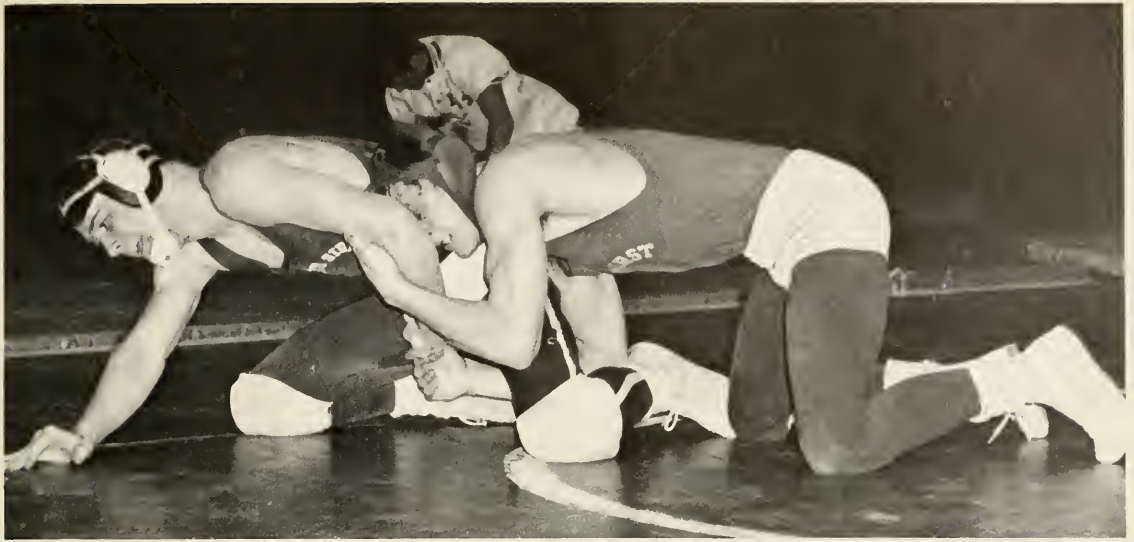

STRUGGLING with his North Side opponent, first year man, sophomore Warren Hoffman, works for a take down. Warren later pinned his opponent as Elmhurst won the meet 23-22.

GAINING one of his fourteen wins against a North Side foe, to only four setbacks, is senior Steve Swim. He along with Greg Antalís led the squad to a 4th Place finish in the sectionals, as they both placed second in their weight classes.

With the completion of Elmhurst's fifth varsity wrestling season, three new team records were established. Under the rule of Coach James Welborn the team had it's best season ever with a 10-2 record. The second team record followed along with this as nine of the ten victories were consecutive. The scufflers brought back first place honors from the Twin Lakes Invitational as Greg Antalís, Terry Younghans, Stacy Boroff, Wayne Horn, and Denny Dickmeyer all placed first in their weight classes. The trophy had double meaning as it was not only representing first place at the invitational, but it was also Elmhurst's first wrestling trophy in it's five year wrestling history.

During mid-season action, injuries to Charlie Hoopes and Dave Wathan set back the force of the team by two although team victories still prevailed. At the end of the season, Coach Welborn looked back on what he had molded and was well pleased.

USING A pressure hold, Junior Dennis Dickmeyer attempts to break down a North Side opponent. He later tied his foe with a 4-4 outcome.

COACH JIM WELBORN talks over strategy with heavyweight Rick Townshend. In spite of Rick's 5-0 defeat, the matmen still came out victors.

Golfers capture city and sectional titles;

SPECULATING on the outcome of the match, head Coach Nick Werling awaits returns.

Elmhurst's 1970 golf team proved once again their championship qualities compared against all challengers as they brought from the course both city and sectional triumphs.

Returning from last year's squad, seniors Bill Kratzert and Jeff Nowak enjoyed all-city title for the second consecutive year, while junior Jim Bradow earned the title for the first time. Special recognition went to Bill Kratzert for earning sectional Medalist honors, even though he lost a close match in the city play-off.

This year's exceptional team record was nothing new to Mr. Werling, now in his eleventh year as coach of the team. The team finished with a commendable 15-1 record. The only loss to East Noble was a heartbreaker. The golfers finished their season with a special champion's breakfast, given by the varsity cheerleaders, as two huge trophies served as center pieces.

CHIPPING his ball onto the green, junior Jim Bradow puts himself back into play where he'll do some serious putting.

Kratzert medalist in sectional

WITH A STEADY HAND and an earnest effort, senior golfer Bill Kratzert putts his ball into the cup to finish a grueling round in the sectional tourney play-off at Brookwood. Bill's abilities won him the medalist honors in the Tourney.

A LOOK OF CONCERN occupies Senior Jeff Nowak's face as he watches where his ball lands during the North Side meet. Jeff, through his consistent play was named to the All-City golf team for the second consecutive year.

Trackmen win Kokomo Relays, runner-up in Finishing second in city and sectional play and placing fourth in regional competition, the Elmhurst track team completed another season with results which can be termed as nothing less than "fantabulous". Many long nights of hard work and strenuous efforts paid off for Bob Harrington and Ron Moake as they both set new school records. Bob, a junior in his first season of Varsity track jumped 6'6" and placed third in State. Ron Moake made his record in the pole vault with a 13'9" vault, while another outstanding trackster, Steve Swim won both sectional and regional high hurdles. The Elmhurst half mile relay team, composed of Rick Chamberlain, Steve Stiffler, Greg Gust, and Jim McFadden, placed first in sectional, second in regional and fourth in state. Running varsity in his sophomore year Paul Ausdran captured second in the sectional two mile run but was unable to finish his race in the regional due to an injury. Flying aces Senior Todd Sterling and junior Steve McCabe both amazed many a spectator in the mile as they demonstrated their remarkable endurance abilities which took them to sectional action.

WILL TO PREVAIL becomes evident as lead-off man sophomore Paul Ausdran completes his final lap of the distance medley relay at the North Side Relays.

GOOD FORM, demonstrated by junior Mike Brown during the Wawasee track meet help him place high in the final standings of the shot put event.

Sectionals

CLEARING THE BAR during sectional competition, junior Bob Harrington makes it look easy. Bob won the event plus setting the sectional record of 6'5 3/4".

AS THE FINISH LINE approaches, South 220 yard runner attempts to pass both senior Bob Smiley and junior Brad Barton.

DETERMINATION to keep up with the pace of the South Side two miler seems to be the goal of seniors Tom Cash, George Kariger, and sophomore Terry Younghans. Tom won the event with George and Terry coming in third and fourth respectively.

LITTLE STRAIN shows on senior Todd Sterling's face as he eases past a New Haven opponent. The senior miler led the Distance Medley relay team to a new North Side Relays record of 7:53.3 as he ran an unofficial 4:22.0 mile.

COLD, TENSE AND ANXIOUS head coach Don Kemp times the first lap of the mile run as assistant coach Carter Lohr observes the runners.

QUICK EXCHANGE of the baton from Junior Mike Grossman to Sophomore Mike McFadden enables the 880 yard relay team to place first in the Hoosier Relay meet. Other team members that contributed to the win are seniors Bob Smiley and Steve Swim.

Tracksters place third in North Side Relays

REGARDLESS OF JUMPING into gusting winds, senior Ron Moake passes over the crossbar to set a new school and North Side Relay record of 13 ft. 9 in.

METHODS OF EXTENSION for greater broad jumping distance becomes an asset for junior Scott Dickmeyer at the Concordia track meet.

Frequently criticized Council investigates abolishing apathy

While listening to Bob Ferguson's rendition of two songs from the popular movie "Alice's Restaurant" and the Blue Impressions patrons of the Ice Cream Social ate ice cream and other dietary essentials. Approximately 300 people attended the social, providing a $200 profit to be stored in the treasury.

Many less fortunate people had a happier Thanksgiving due to a collection in which Trojans donated $150. Half bought food for dinners, while the remainder went to Miss Virginia who purchased needed blankets. Christmas collection money aided the WOWO Penny Pitch; these proceeds supplemented the needs of a family in the Fort Wayne area.

Sophomores took a big step forward when the semester wait, which supposedly acquainted them with school policies before they could vote, was abolished by an overwhelming majority. While seniors favored eliminating the period, the president almost single-handedly upheld the inovative training period.

Representative 'board' suggests new options in handling of meetings

Y-Teens girls played the roles of "big sisters" to female residents of the Fort Wayne State School. They discussed problems concerning boys, family and entering society. Each club sent members to the downtown YMCA to form the Interclub Council. Formulating programs and working in co-operation with the adult chapter were their main duties.

To encourage membership, Hi-Y and Y-Teen members held a picnic at Hodell Acres. The theme "Love is . . ." and the "Badge" created a somewhat romantic atmosphere at the dually sponsored semester break dance. Collecting items of clothing and canned goods aided the school wide campaign Christmas for Miss Virginia and the poor she helped.

AFTER the customary Christmas program, Miss Virginia looks over one of the gifts gathered during the Hi-Y and Y-Teens Christmas drive.

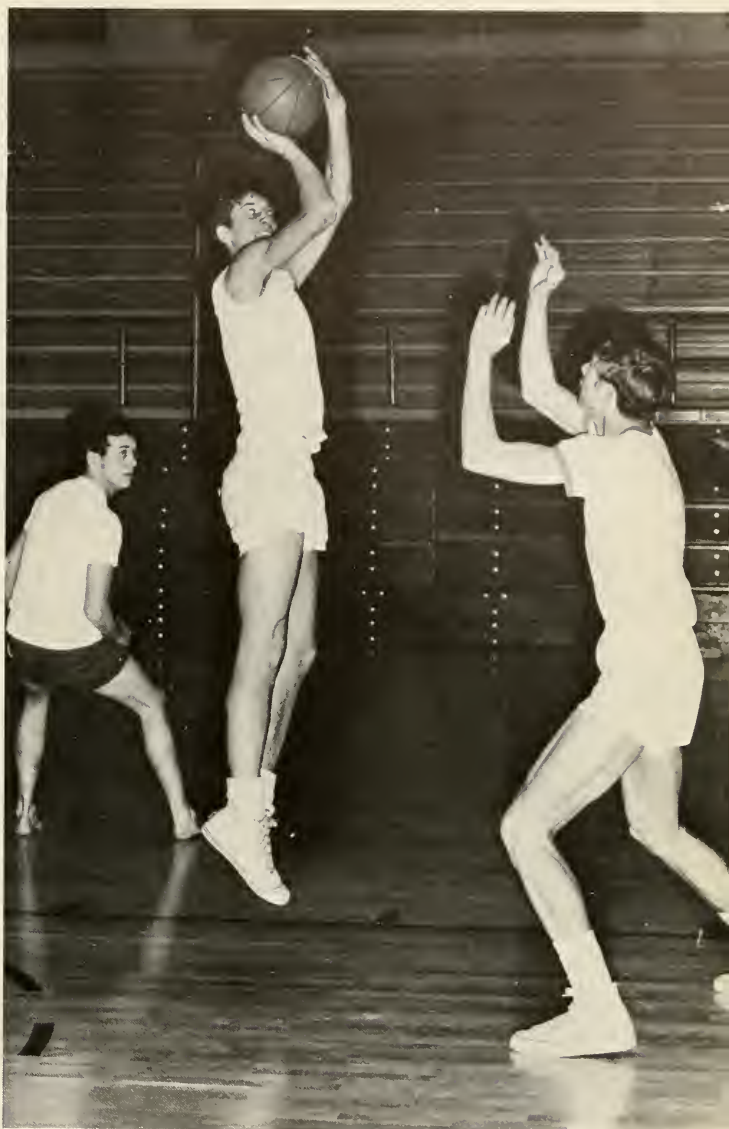

Hoopsters retain title for second season as Hi-Y city champions

Sponsoring a picnic at Hodel Acres introduced perspective members to the Hi-Y and Y-Teen clubs. Trying to strengthen the bonds between the Y-Teens and themselves, many projects were co-sponsored, such as a swim party, a karate and dog demonstration and a dance over semester break.

Many boys took advantage of their membership by working-out at the downtown YMCA's gym and pool at designated times. By defeating other area Hi-Y basketball teams the EHS team won the Hi-Y basketball Championship for the second consecutive year.

Colin Lister, coach of the Fort Wayne Komets, headed a discussion on Hockey and sportsmanship at one of the club's program meetings. The sheriff department showed a safety film and the Hi-Y and Y-Teens members participated in a Sex and Dating discussion at a joint meeting of the clubs.

Projectionists aid as "jobbers" for audio-visual needs

Lights, projector, roll'em, OOPS! These were a few of the more common phrases of the Projectionist Club members as they not only learned how to operate equipment but learned to cope with accidents that could arise. Although having no formal meetings, they were close, sharing similar projects and problems.

Early in May the teachers busily filled orders for films for the next year's agenda. From Chicago and Indiana University, as well as the ever-in-demand downtown library, films were hauled into the school daily.

Members earned a point for each film showed. Required for a pin and letter were 50 and 100 points, respectively. This might seem like a lot to ask but an average of 21 films per day with a club enrollment of 25 members managed to keep bustling.

'Percolated Pot' proceeds supplement Red Cross donations

A questionnaire used in choosing 12 new Red Cross Council members gave participants a better basis of selection, modifying the old system of choosing only six sophomores. Four of these 12 will attend Homestead High next year and will establish a separate Council. "More students were made members because of the effort to eliminate some of the selectivity in choosing members," said President John Hoffman.

A membership drive for the American National Red Cross yielded $120 that went to the area Red Cross chapter. Other collections provided a needy family a Thanksgiving turkey dinner and $75 to aid overseas servicemen. The members also collected old books which they gave to the Parent-Teachers Association.

Members planned to ask Trojans to participate in the "Teen Gallon" blood donation drive and the annual informal talent show, the "Percolated Pot". This year's response to the coffee house setting almost guaranteed the show to be as successful as last year's.

Surrealistic environs of education projects image to FTA

Running wild, new and old Future Teachers of America members created an atmosphere of fun at the annual initiation picnic. As part of their initiation, the members wearing paper-sacks over their heads dodged waterfilled balloons, played air-raid and paraded through Franke Park.

Founded to aid teachers, students in FTA served as elves, service workers and ushers at speech and debate tournaments. Qualifying seniors acted as student teachers for a day at area elementary schools.

During the Christmas season the organization adopted a needy family. They divided into groups working to get clothing and personal items for the family. They also provided the family with a Christmas tree and food to celebrate the season.

Commercial Club stimulates business interest in activities

Featured at every meeting of the Commercial Club were speakers. A representative of Midwestern Life Insurance Company discussed vital subjects as to what qualities today's employers look for. He especially stressed the need of proficiency in both shorthand and typing. For those preparing to start the job hunt, another speaker gave hints on what to wear. Mr. Bahney, of the Distributive Education program, directed his message toward the junior members. He explained the qualifications to participate in the program.

Because of dwindling membership the Annual Awards Banquet was only tentatively scheduled this year. Awards to the members with the highest speed in shorthand and typing were to be highlighted for their achievements.

'Class time' extension provides opportunity for specialized work

Members of the Industrial Arts Club went on an educational field trip to the Grabill Cabinet Company, Grabill, Indiana, arranged by sponsors Mr. Murphy and Mr. Renkenburger. "This company is one of the major cabinet makers in the Midwest," stated Mr. Murphy.

Projects were chosen from a practically limitless field. "The students made everything from soup to nuts," mentioned Mr. Murphy. In between the "soup and nuts", students built small engines, grandmother clocks, water skis and motorcycles.

Choosing new name for magazine depicts dislike for title

In an effort to make the Ilian more general this year, certain basic changes occurred. The most prominent was a desired change in the name to better fit the magazine's content. The new name was to be selected by the staff or by means of a contest. To be able to include inexpensively photography and other creative works, the magazine had to convert to offset printing.

Included in the magazine were short stories, poetry and other forms of art work created by students. Each entry had to be screened by a committee related to its section composed of two representatives from each class, plus an editor and assistant editor.

Afro-American Club increases controversy while promoting unity

Established with hopes of creating an atmosphere stressing unity among its members, the newly organized Afro-American Unity Club proved to be a center of controversy among many students when its usefulness and reason for being were questioned.

Sponsoring a Christmas party for 60, three and four year old, children at the Wayne Street Youth Center provided the club with its first project. Members baked cookies and cupcakes for some of the refreshments. Small Christmas surprise sacks filled with assorted candy and small toys brought expressions of joy and contentment from the little people.

Mr. Carl A. Benson, Executive Secretary of the Mayor's Commission on Human Relations presented to the AAUC and interested students and faculty members an enlightening delivery of his viewpoints on racial problems in the Fort Wayne area, the establishment and functioning of the newly televised all black program "Stone Soul" and generally controversial issues.

Hours of mass confusion result in winning paper

"Rewrite this story and this time do it right," frequently rang throughout room 108 at the beginning of each week. However, the editors concluded the week with, "Wow! I can't believe that after all the chaos this week we have a finished product."

Four significant developments took place this year. News Bureau, under the direction of Deb Moe, included the reviewing of activities, explaining achievements and developing community interests. Tom Yoder, executive editor, commented from a column and developed a style reminiscent of renowned free lance writers.

To establish greater rapport between staff members, the position of student advisor helped solve problems. Debbie Flaig held this responsibility along with training new staffers and aiding Mr. Butler. At the semester break a staff change occurred to train underclassmen for the coming year and for old members to gain experience in more than one area to aid in future journalistic endeavors.

Marketing distribution develops respect for competitive jobs

Hosting a hayride in October, Deca Club members sponsored the annual Employer-Employee Banquet. Shown in a showcase the club featured exhibits pertaining to different areas of merchandising.

Members submitted special research projects for the Three Rivers Regional Conference, which featured different competitive activities in merchandising. One analyzed and contrasted the buying habits and motives of girls versus boys, while others researched consumer preferences in home furnishings, areas of credit and in floral arrangements. Selected by the students themselves, they worked with three local businessmen who assisted in writing survey questionnaires to obtain required information to complete their projects. These projects, first entered the intercity contest, had possibilities of being contenders in nation-wide competition.

FOUR WINNERS in the DECA state contest happily admire their trophies. Winners are seniors Marlene Houston, Diana Campbell, Cheryl Miller and Lori Barker.

Local businessmen sponsor tours for active VICA members

Elections for state and national VICA officers took place in Indianapolis; senior Jim Gerke ran for president and was defeated by a small margin. A spring contest, also conducted in the state capital, challenged members to compete with other young people at their own particular skills.

Money making projects held by the club included a candy sale, slide party and two paper drives. The assorted candy sales totaled $300, the slide party at the Big Dipper $80 and the paper drive money totaled $50. Members, stag or with dates, attended a club sponsored swim party at Club Olympia. This money, along with club dues, went to pay for an employer-employee banquet. This annual event was "for the members to show their appreciation to their employers and to honor outstanding members," said Mr. Phipps, club sponsor.

Simulated attire adds much to atmosphere of annual banquet

The idea of associating students with ancient Roman customs and behaviors was the purpose behind the Classical Club. For the most part it was just a chance for the members to enjoy themselves.

Throughout the year, a number of activities were planned, highlighted in the spring by a Roman Banquet in which all the members dressed in appropriate Roman attire.

Officer's meetings were held during home-room periods and occasionally after school. This year's officers were senior Glen Hunt acting as Consul with sophomore Jim McFadden adding his assistance as Vice-Consul.

Information about other cultures was another goal fulfilled by frequent talks with Chilean David Nowogrodski. Raising money through the annual T-shirt sale and private donations managed to send and keep David in America.

Different speakers highlighted meetings and talked of experiences and beliefs. John Rogers spoke about his stay in San Mateo, California, doing social work in cooperation with Operation Crossroads. He detailed the achievements of swimming and craft programs for youngsters. Mrs. Ophelia Herrero, teacher from Cuba, lectured on communism and contemporary problems Cubans face today.

livens gatherings

Bodies bearing minds ready to expand their learnings ventured into a world of previously accumulated knowledge via Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry. For the fourth consecutive year a large percentage of Phi-Chem members visited the city by bus. After arriving, the group spread themselves throughout the museum and, when finished, they proceeded to add to the day's agenda some other sights of varying interest. To make the excursion possible, the members pooled their earnings from the sale of cokes during all half times of home basketball games.

The organization, totaling about 54, consisted of students and their sponsors who were currently or had previously participated in a chemistry or physics course.

By following three preset rules of measuring club participation, the members trekked through the year attending the regular meetings, peddling coke on the "squad" at games or being outstanding in co-curricular activities. Thus, they earned points for letters and awards.

'Goodwill monitors' serve as guides, aid in hall traffic control

While thinking only about being trustworthy, dependable and chivalrous, 42 able-bodied seniors sat in assigned positions as hall monitors. Six of them each period greeted visitors with open arms and accompanied them to the desired objective.

Other fun jobs of the hall monitors consisted of running errands and lending aid to teachers and office personnel when they are needed, reporting anything suspicious to the office and above all strive to be good citizens.

The monitors were nominated for their positions in the spring of the previous year by the faculty. Although they were allowed to choose their own captain, they abstained deciding a captaincy an unnecessary burden.

Forum encourages oral interpretation, seeks trophy case

Using lips, teeth, tongue, vocal cords and diaphragm, the Forum Club and National Forensic League engaged in interscholastic activities throughout the state while winning trophies.

Preferring to face the consequences of performance alone, solo competitors spoke in divisions including humorous dramatic and oratorical interpretation, poetry, discussion, radio and boy's and girl's extemporaneous. After speaking in rounds consisting of seven people, qualifying members proceeded to a final round.

Arguing the topic, "Resolved: That Congress should prohibit unilateral U.S. Military intervention in foreign countries", the debate team met weekly with other teams. During debate, the affirmative and negative sides presented evidence supporting their respective stand on issues being discussed.

After obtaining a certain amount of points, Forum Club members began acquiring National Forensic points and a higher club ranking.

Some of the more than 30 programs the Choir participated in, besides assemblies and concerts for the school, included singing at churches, concerts and business meetings. Twelve of these programs were done within 14 days during the Christmas season.

"Trojan Singers", a small select group of the choir, sang "Something Special", "A Foggy Day" and "Sunny" for the Rotary Club and the Colonial Bakery managers. Singing popular jazz and golden oldies, they composed programs to fit the taste of their over 35 age audiences.

Both groups became popular and received an over abundance of invitations to perform at area functions. Preferring to sing to audiences, they refused area choral contest offers.

Flashy uniforms, pom pon routines spice halftime shows

After receiving a first place division rating at the Northern Indiana School Band Orchestra and Vocal Association, the Stage Band also captured first place in the Notre Dame Collegiate Contest on March 21.

Composed of 18 members, their activities included playing for the Chamber of Commerce, the Teachers Convention and St. Joseph's College. On April 11 a Jazz Festival and Clark Terry, renowned trumpeter, played with the winning stage band.

In addition to standard activities, twirlers performed new flag, pom pon and twirling routines. "Casino Royal", "Aquarius-Let the Sun Shine In" and "Big Spender" were a few of the more well-known tunes accompanying them. All attended Smith-WalbridgeCamp, winning in the competition class. Marching with the band they won in the NISBOVA contest.

Cheerleaders win spirit stick for second time

For the second consecutive year, the varsity cheerleaders received the spirit stick, awarded for outstanding achievement at Smith-Walbridge Cheering Camp. They learned new cheering techniques, special rhythms, mounts, and an added touch of poise. They cheered regularly at every sport and at all basketball and football games.

New uniforms of red sweaters and matching red skirts with white pleats added an extra array of luster to the varsity squad.

Reserve cheerleaders, chosen for ability, enthusiasm and school spirit, assisted the varsity leaders at the somewhat rare pep sessions, and sports events. To boost school spirit, cheerleaders displayed posters throughout the main halls of the school. One sign in particular stated: "Trojans We're Backing You!"

Limited attendance hinders Booster Club, new plans for change

Headed by the varsity and reserve cheerleaders, the 144 Booster Club members concentrated on learning new cheers and chants. Cards could not be used this year due to poor attendance at practices. Glove routines brightened up the games; although Trojans couldn't see the routines, it showed EHS opponents the Booster Club's spirit. Practicing every Thursday after school helped members perfect their glove routine ability.

Atz's South hosted, on March 18, the Booster Club Banquet with each girl contributing $1.55 for her dinner. Entertainment by Bob Ferguson was one highlight of the occasion. "Overall the club was a tremendous boost to the basketball team," expressed Mrs. Foelber, club sponsor.

LOOKING after a loose ball, front row booster club girls frantically evade the object by displaying involuntary reflexes of facial pain and clenched fists.

EXPRESSIONS of despair and disbelief cross the faces of Booster Club members during a home game half time as their expectations of victory vanish.

Lettermen propose purchase of whirlpool

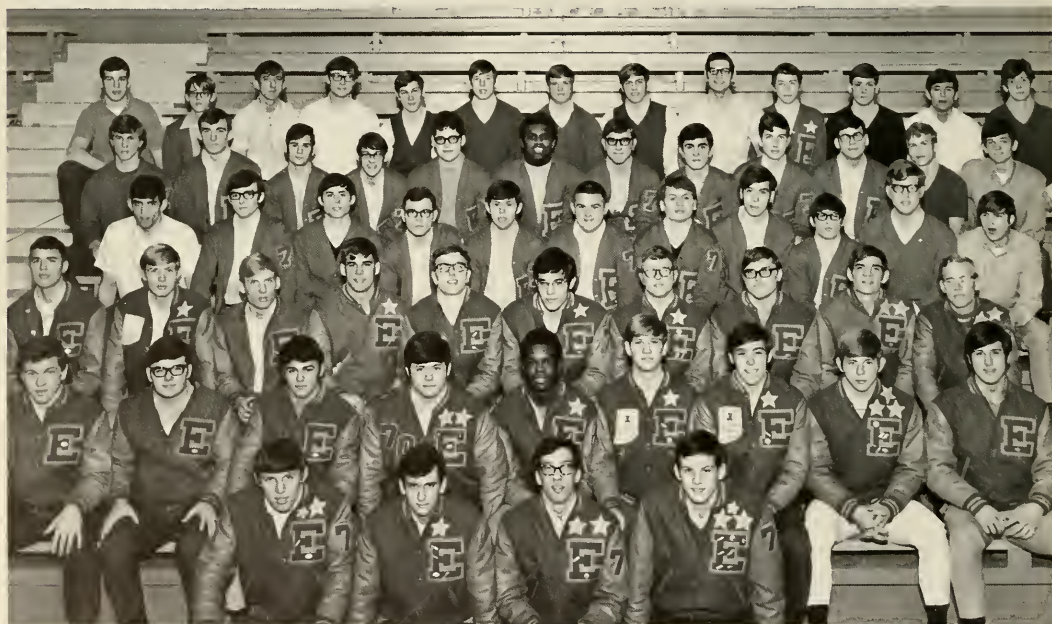

"Come Together" by the Beatles might remind Lettermen's Club members of times had this year. Being one of the more active clubs in the program, Lettermen met every Friday morning before school, not counting the extra times they "got together". The club itself consisted of those who had earned the "Red Badge of Courage" during their stay at Elmhurst.

Early in the year, the Lettermen sponsored a hayride at Norm Fogwell's farm which brought in roughly $40 or $50. They also conducted the annual Trojan license plate sale which proved to be one of the better undertakings of the social and service minded club.

Not resting easily with all this money in their pocket, they donated much of it to the Athletic Department for whatever purpose it deemed useful. Another portion bought corsages for the cheerleaders at the ill-fated Sectionals, fulfilling the goal of fun and fellowship.

ATHLETIC Director Douglas Spencer proudly presents senior Bob Smiley his letterjacket that he receives for athletic participation.

Depression history demands interest in historical members

Educational trips to various historical landmarks inspired members of the Historical Society to study more about their background. Delegates from the club proposed to attend the state Historical Society Convention in Springmill, Indiana. They planned to bring back new ideas from older and more stable societies.

Using questionnaires sent out to people of the 1930 Depression Era, they wrote a historical account of this period. This club, founded for total enjoyment, no homework or compulsory assignments, inspired everyone with a slight liking in Indiana history to develop greater interest and research more on the subject, commented President Skip McKinley.

Political Science Club sponsors modern innovated festival

Hosting a film festival on April 17, the Political Science Club planned to show individually made films of the producer's viewpoints. A few exhibited were, "A Trip Thru Memory Lane", "God is Dog," and "Help My Snowman's Burning Down".

Debating on the Student Council's function, John Rogers spoke on whether or not the council was a service industry or a policy making body. They also discussed impeachment of council members or officers not doing a thorough job and stricter selection of representatives.

To investigate political awareness, in a cross section of the student body, members conducted a survey to see if students knew what the First Amendment was and meant. The wise seniors showed more 'no opinion' answers than juniors and sophomores.

Providing girls with a better understanding of the many things involved in home economics and preparing them as future homemakers was the main objective of the Home Ec. Club.

Presenting the children at the Allen County Children's Home and St. Vincent's Villa with a Halloween party, members of the club highlighted the evening of bobbing for apples and other games with a weiner roast. The remainder of the evening provided the children with time for trick-or-treating escorted by members.

Explaining the correct way scarfs should be worn a guest speaker gave economizing hints. Interested members watched the fashion coordinator demonstrate how various scarfs could be worn to enhance the beauty of and add style to an ordinary outfit.

ACTIVITIES varied for girls in the Home Ec. Club as some of them ceased perfecting their skills as demonstrated by Denise Patrick and Cheyrl Keller.

"Work horses" in library, helpers card 500 books daily

Providing requisite help for the librarians, 25 volunteer students checked out books, put them on shelves, and collected attendance slips. The librarians taught these duties to the students while they gained additional experience on the job. Keeping up their grades allowed them to sacrifice free time.

Considering the staggering arrival of approximately 2,000 new books this year, it was easy to see the necessity of the student workers. They also aided in checking out an average of 500 books a day. The girls contributed about 50 hours of service per week.

"We couldn't do it without them", Mrs. Hibon stated. "They're necessary; we, the librarians and clerks, are grateful for their help." Pins were rewarded for their contributions.

SILENCE in the Library will soon be broken by "one of life's little problems" as service worker Barb Stephens attempts to catch the falling books.

Basketball telephonic corrects dilemma of no

Regular Wednesday night meetings tended to keep members of the Girls' Athletic Association away from the television or telephone for an extra hour or so longer. Membership this year was at its largest with 90, pardon the expression, active members.

Activities undertaken by the girls, fun things such as bowling, miniature golfing, swimming and skiing at Mt. Wawasee kept them busy during the year.

Early during the year the club sold official Elmhurst pennants to faculty and students or anyone else who had the money to make a purchase. Round-robin tournaments in softball, volley-tennis and volleyball provided a chance for competition. An interschool basketball telephonic also gave the girls a chance to compete with other schools.

Largest class honored at awards assembly

Valedictorian Nancy Middleton and Salutatorian Rise Smith, attending Ball State and Kalamazoo College, received scholarship trophies at the annual Recognition Assembly. Robert D. Ewing, Paul Garrett, Nancy Middleton, Timothy Miller, Larry Myers, Jim Partsch and David Wathen topped the National Merit Finalist list. Attaining the highest number of points in athletics enabled Brett Able to accept the Blanket Award. The National Athletic Scholarship Society admitted Brett Able, Greg Antalis, Dan Berning, Ron Caldwell, Rick Chamberlain, Dennis Dietzel, George Kariger and Steve Tobias.

Recipients of the Danforth Award, Becky Miller and Dan Berning, received the book, "I Dare You". Winning the National High School Mathematics Contest Paul Garrett accepted a silver medal for first place, Larry Myers and Barb Hunter finished second and third. The Arion Award in Band went to Karen Boling and in Choir to Jim Craig. Rise Smith and Bill Wareham, selected by the faculty on good citizenship qualities, were presented the DAR Award.

DURING THE ANNUAL recognition assembly, Karen Boling receives the Arion Award for her participation in band from Bob Buckle.

Individual potential develops in growth as life goes on Serving dual positions as president and vice-president of the Senior Class and Student Faculty Relations Board, Glenn Hunt and Steve Tobias admittedly achieved little except helping with Prom and Homecoming preparations. As Outstanding Teenagers of America Brett Able, Thelo White and Barb Piepenbrink joined teens throughout the nation in a quest for their respective state Outstanding American title and ultimately one of two National titles and scholarships. Selected on the basis of ability and achievement, the goal of this awards program was to recognize and encourage the ability and achievements of today's people. Jane Weicker and Shelia Webster received state championships in the Indiana Saddle Horse Association, the former led the Preliminary Green Jumper division in points and the latter, the Hunter Seat Equitation Division which judged the rider's poise and handling.

Terminating stay appeases seniors as 'now' takes precedence

Other outstanding seniors included Linda Storey who participated in the National Forensic Tournament in Washington D.C. receiving a certificate for doing better than 90 per cent of the contestants her age. She qualified by placing first in Girls Extemporaneous Speaking in the NFL District Tournament.

Double honors were bestowed upon Nancy Middleton winning the Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow award and the Daughters of the American Revolution contest on the school level. Nancy won the former completing a written knowledge and attitude test related to homemaking. Selected by a faculty committee on good citizen qualities, she then competed in the state contest. John Rogers did social work in I'Mateo, California in conjunction with Operation Crossroads. Living in an old parsonage and later with a Japanese family, his group organized a Bible school, a craft club and swimming programs.

LACK OF physical contact with his opponents stifles senior Tim Disler. Exasperated, he utters a last prayer.

Juniors win spirit 'bucket' 2:1 over other classes

Juniors won the coveted spirit cup twice in succession defeating seniors and sophomores by a small margin. They accomplished this feat by an unusual display of spirit and the highest percentage of students wearing red.

Serving on the Student-Faculty Relations Board and organizing the Prom kept class president Mike Stiffler and vice-president Simon Montalvo active Student Council members. Other diverse interests also busied juniors. Bill Flickenger achieved the highest possible rank in Boy Scouting, the Eagle Scout. Placing second at the state fair and in the top six riders in the state, Walter Ainsworth spent his summer showing "Dark Shadows". Placing third in both the Junior Chamber of Commerce Tournament and the Junior Medal Contest furthered Jim Bradow's plans to play golf in college. Diana Spang qualified for the American Legion Zone Oratorical Contest and a chance to win an Indiana University scholarship by winning the district division contest.

Unreasonably apathetic year quells sophomore spirit

GIRLS' gym doors are opened wide when Donna Tatem, Terri Smyers, and Diane Prezbindowski are lucky enough to find a lull in the passing period.

Led by Jeff Brown and Elaine Gres, president and vice-president respectively, plans for "Spring Thing", the class party were underway to make the event a "memorable thing".

Varied outside activities occupied the free time of many sophomores. Gwen Ransom won second and third place in the state and Junior Olympic track meets respectively. Besides presiding over the Flaming Arrows Track Club, Gwen prepared for the national meet in California by weight lifting and cheerleading. Lori Burtch, Greg Haycox, Scott Stauffer, Jim Spears, and Marc Frankenstein attended Durham University under a British study program. Attaining the ultimate Boy Scout rank of Eagle Scout, Dave Lee, Mark Wolfe, Randy Carr, Warren Hoffman and Gary Dulin participated in the annual Recognition Day festivities. A member of the Fort Wayne Ballet School Lolly Brenn was in "Seasons", a children's concert and other productions. Attempting to learn more skills, she studied ballet in Gulfport, Mississippi.

Administration keeps composure during year of maxis,'

Adding three hundred new people created numerous problems, which necessitated another full-time guidance counselor, Mr. Jerry Bush. School problems, not always personal, were discovered shortly by Mr. Charles Eickhoff when students began demanding more and better parking lot facilities. The west lot, formerly the practice field for marching band, accommodated the overflow of cars adequately until the first rain, when the problem of muddy parking spaces were numerous. Realization by downtown offices that the weather could not be regulated, forced final consideration and approval of a level gravel parking lot to hold 450 cars.

Some confusion reigned among faculty members on the diversified dress code proposals. A decision levied in February abolished the set hair code among the boys; restrictions were that it must not collide with the school health regulations. For girls, the new modest maxi-skirts and the popular mini were approved for classroom wear.

Reading reveals hidden meanings in literature classics

Relatively unknown faculty interests occupied their spare time. Strike, a word anticipated by faculty bowling leaguers, often rang at Hillcrest Lanes. They competed with area school teams in the Southern Division upon which the winners opposed the Northern League champs. John Butler headed the organization of the Ball State summer journalism workshops that host 450-500 students. He also taught two graduate courses at Ball State; seminar and journalism teaching methods. Attempting to bring something different to Fort Wayne, Robert Passwater, Charles Stitzel, David Renkenburger, Kent Kurtz and Richard Mattix, bought the 'Moonwalk'. The air structure supported by fans gave the effect of jumping on an enormous bed with circulating air above. The 'Moonwalk' and the 'Big Dipper', another project, opened together in a supermarket lot. The gigantic slide proved another way to earn pocket money.

Industrial Arts, Phys Ed staffs engage in recreation

In order to relax after school, faculty members John Bunnell, Ken Eytcheson, Gene Jacobs, Robert Meyers, Dave Renkenberger, Warren Hoover and John Campbell began to compete in their own post season contests. Recreation was at its peak but the releasing of energy caused some serious situations. On one occasion Meyers received an elbow in the nose and spent the remainder of the week wearing sunglasses in school. Needless to say, the teachers found a need for Ben Gay on the morning after the contests.

undergoes "swinging", work-filled year

Al Schmutz occupied his free time by designing and carving wooden wall plaques. These works graced establishments around the nation, they included monograms, trademarks and even the city flag. Many, some made to order, were sold through museums. Observing the March 7 eclipse William Carey and friends stationed themselves between Perry, Florida and Bristol, Georgia, the only places in the United States where the eclipse was total. They attempted, by using three cameras set at different speeds, to capture the never before photographed shadow-bands on the earth caused by a total eclipse. While enrolled at the Minneapolis School of Art, Don Goss painted portraits and constructed a wood block musical instrument composed of string steel and wood. The percussion, string, wind and rattling instruments of all the students harmonized in a private concert. As a member of the North Central Evaluation Board, Gene Melchi travelled to Highland High School. He judged the student activities programs and certain teachers' credits.

'69 Anlibrum accomplishes goal, wins All-American

Being of sound minds and bodies, the Anlibrum staff completed another yearbook. Working diligently to meet deadlines and avoid mass confusion, many stayed after school to finish given assignments.

Members of the staff gladly gave up their study periods to be in the publications program simply because they wished to be able to pick up a yearbook and say, "I had a part in this." Last year, this same attitude along with tedious labor, won an A+ and All-American Award for the '69 "Annie".

Although no credit was given for the additional effort, few students deterred from the cause. Students became members of the staff either by applying the previous year or, sometimes, were promoted from journalism classes.

A new system of special section editors in each section provided better organization for the Anlibrum. This year, as in the past, outstanding members were admitted to the Quill and Scroll, a journalistic honor society.

Acknowledgements

As the 1970 Ablibrum comes to an end, we hope that the "Signs of Life" have been captured in this year's "Annie." Through a complete layout change, more effective use of color, and an opening section devoted to the theme, we hope to convey the "Signs of Life" theme to you.

Without the help of many people it would be impossible to produce this yearbook. I wish to thank the staff for its hard work and creativity in producing a unique book. Special thanks goes to Jody Stephans, managing editor, to John Hornberger, cover designer, and to John Hoffman, director of photography. Our adviser Mr. John M. Butler deserves special recognition for his suggestions and extra time spent with the staff when we were pressed with deadlines.

Mr. Ed Hackleman and Mr. Mike Hackleman, Delmar printing representatives, deserve special praise for getting us started on the right foot at the beginning of the year. Mr. Ray Dobbs Root Studios representative who took the student body mug shots and S. K. Smith Company, cover manufacturer, deserve a special thanks for their work.

It is my sincere wish that everyone can see themselves as a part of "Signs of Life" and as each year passes "Signs of Life" will always exist, but will still change with time.

Becky
